Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1, 3, 5, 10-11, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Godkin et al (U.S. Patent No. 4,808,955).

Regarding claim 1, Godkin teaches a linear actuator comprising a core (12, 46, 58) having a longitudinal axis; a coil (42, 44; 54, 56) shaped for movement along the longitudinal axis of the core; and a magnet structure (22, 24, 26, 28; 30, 32, 34, 36) positioned along the longitudinal axis of the core; wherein the core includes first and second portions (at 46, at 58), each including an end face and a cavity (near 48-49) having an axis of symmetry along the longitudinal axis of the core, and further wherein the first and second portions are positioned so that the end faces oppose each other and are separated by a gap (at least 49).

Regarding claim 3, Godkin teaches the linear actuator of claim 1, wherein the magnet assembly (22, 24, 26, 28; 30, 32, 34, 36) includes magnets of the same polarity facing the coil.

Regarding claim 5, Godkin teaches the linear actuator of claim 3, wherein the magnets (22, 24; 30, 32) are shaped to be positioned outside of the coil.

Regarding claim 10, Godkin teaches the linear actuator of claim 1, wherein the cavity formed in the first portion of the core has a hemispherical cross section along the longitudinal axis (cylindrical structure, col. 3 lines 46-47).

Regarding claim 11, Godkin teaches the linear actuator of claim 10, wherein the cavity formed in the second portion of the core has a hemispherical cross section along the longitudinal axis (cylindrical structure, col. 3 lines 46-47).

Regarding claim 26, Godkin teaches the linear actuator of claim 3, wherein the gap is formed in a plane transverse to the longitudinal axis, and the magnets (22, 24, 26, 28; 30, 32, 34, 36) are positioned to form a space between them which is aligned with the plane transverse to the longitudinal axis (figure 4).

Claims 1, 3, 5, 7, 34, and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Zhao (U.S. Patent No. 5,808,379).

Regarding claims 1, 3, 5, Zhao teaches a linear actuator comprising a core (center pole, 40) having a longitudinal axis; a coil (14) shaped for movement along the longitudinal axis of the core; and a magnet structure (34-35) positioned along the longitudinal axis of the core; wherein the core includes first and second portions (figure 5), each including an end face and a cavity (44) having an axis of symmetry along the longitudinal axis of the core, and further wherein the first and second portions are positioned so that the end faces oppose each other and are separated by a gap (44).

Regarding claim 7, Zhao teaches the linear actuator of claim 5, further including a housing (37-38) supported by core flanges and positioned about the coil and the core, and wherein the magnets are supported by the housing.

Regarding claim 34, Zhao teaches a linear actuator comprising a core (center pole, 40); a coil (14) shaped to be positioned about the core for movement along a longitudinal axis of the core; a magnet assembly (34-35) including magnets of the same polarity facing the coil; and a housing (37-38) supported by core flanges and positioned about the coil and the core; and wherein the core includes first and second portions (figure 5), each having an end face, and the first and second portions are positioned along the longitudinal axis so that the end faces oppose each other and are separated by a gap (44), and further wherein a cavity is symmetrically formed in each of the end faces along the longitudinal axis.

Regarding claim 36, Zhao teaches the linear actuator of claim 34, wherein the magnets (34-35) are shaped to be positioned outside of the coil, and to be supported by the housing.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2, 12-20, 25, and 38 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
